Best Database of the Week: One of the things we've always considered goofy about the anti-pay-to-play craze is that it has created a morass of rules, regulations, state laws, and almost 200 municipal ordinances. Well, Porzio Governmental Affairs has gone a long way toward ameliorating that particular problem by launching its subscription-based Porzio Pay-to-Play Data-base. This gives corporations, trade associations, potential donors, consultants, and candidates a one stop shopping set of criteria and thresholds governing political contributions.
